MONDAY MORNING THE BROOKLYN HORROR.

Funerals Yesterday of the Identified Victims.

National Associated Press to the Star: NEW YORK, Dec. 11 .- The funeral of Claude D. Burroughs and Henry S. Murdoch, the two actors who were burned from Oregon. to death at the Brooklyn Theater Tuesday night, took place yesterday from the "Little Church Around the Corner."
The bodies of the dead actors were removed from Irving Hall, where they lay all day Saturday, and about noon they were taken to the church under the direction of the committee of gentlemen connected with the dramatic profession. Directly after the menting services at rection of the committee of gentlemen connected with the dramatic profession. Directly after the morning services at the church were concluded those persons who had obtained tickets of admission to the funeral service began to arrive at the church, and the consequence was that long before the hour of the funeral services the church was crowded to its utmost capacity, and nundreds of persons were unable to obtain admission. The caskets were of polished rosewood, with silver mountings and heavy silver plated extension handles; the lids were closed. The solid silver plate on Mr. Murdoch's casket bore the following inscription: "Henry S. Hitchcock, died bec. 6, 1876, aged 31 years." Murdoch was the professional name of Mr. Hitchcock, taken from his mother's maiden name, she being a sister to the great actor Murdoch. The inscription put on Mr. Burroughs' casket read: "Claude DeBelon Burroughs, born August 15, 1858, died Dec. 6, 1876." Both caskets were upon a catafalque, surrounded by numerous floral offeriogs, chiefly from the members of the Union Square and Brooklyn companies. It was in the form of a scroll, and composed of calla lifles, roses and other choice exotics. Placed in front were the words: "Our Brothers." Artistically outlined in flowers standing near this was a broken shaft nine feet in height composed of tragrant flowers, the gift of shook & Palmer, and other tributes strewn over the caskets, almost con-cealing them from view. The members of the dramatic profession were out in full force, as well as prominent actors from Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore and other cities. The services were conducted by Dr. Houghton, according to the ritual of the Episcopal Churca, and were of the most impressive character, causing tears to drop from many stout hearts. tears to drop from many stout hearts. The services were supplemented by some beautiful musical selections by renowned artists. After the services the following pathbearers took charge of the remains: Lawrence Barrett, J. W. Collier, J. H. Stoddard, T. B. Warde, E. Lumb, H. F. Daly, H. B. Phillips, James O'Neil, John Parceil, H. W. Montgomery, W. E. Sheridan, Lester Wallack, H. J. Montague, Fred. Robertson, T. G. Mackey, H. C.
